be surrendered to the beavers and other wild animals who have there had their home. The houses erected by the Company are the only ones in the greater part of this tract. The stationmasters and their families must have a dreary time of it. On the other hand, the branch lines from Carlton to Owen's Sound go the most fertile and prosperous districts of Ontario, and then there comes the pressure by one of their splendid steamers through the long, land-locked Georgian Channel, and along the northern shore of Lake Superior. When we met at Port Arthur the difference was discernible in the very appearance of the passengers. Those who had done their 1000 miles by the rail were languid as compared to those who came in from the steamer, speaking enthusiastically of the scenery they had witnessed, and all fresh and eager for the journey beyond.

Port Arthur was named Thunder Bay until our young Prince Arthur went up there some years ago, and it was changed in honor of his visit. It is near the old Fort-William of the Hudson Bay Company, which stands five miles up the River Kaministiquia, which many of us tried to pronounce. Between this and Rat Portage—300 miles on—is the region of the "auksaga" described. The land improves as we go west; there are patches that are fertile enough, but not to be recommended for settlement, as the winter is not unfrequently from 50 deg. to 60 degs. below zero. Indeed, there is not much to look at until we reach Winnipeg, the central city on the line, and by far the most wonderful in its history. This is the old Fort Garry of the Hudson Bay Company. Twenty years ago there was nothing but the fort with its surrounding bastions, and a few houses of the servants and hangers-on of the Company. Now there are streets and squares, and colleges and churches, and magnificent edifices, and a population of 30,000. What has caused this wonderful expansion? Doubtless the immense tract of fertile land beyond it, to the very base of the Rocky Mountains, a stretch of 1000 miles, and also the fact that it formed the terminus of the American railway system from St. Paul by Minneapolis. But for this latter reason the big city of the region would have been Selkirk, which forms the natural shipping port of Lake Winnipeg. Winnipeg city is twenty miles south, on the Red River. The Company at first had the line laid to Selkirk in view of this. But there came the Riel rebellion and the Northwest excitement, and the passing of supplies and of settlers over the American railway and the expansion of Winnipeg had become so great that the rails were taken up, relaid further south, and the Bridge over the Red River located at Winnipeg. As there are no less than six radiating lines from this, the station accommodation is considerable. There are twenty-three miles of sidings, and the buildings throughout are lighted by electricity. The main street is very fine; the hotels are spacious and comfortable, the charge being generally three dollars a day. At Stony Mountain—about a dozen miles out—there is to be seen the last herd of buffaloes in the Canadian territory. These have been preserved by Major Bedson for breeding. There are altogether fifty-seven, and as they were taken in when calves, they have become quite tame. The Major has been crossing them with Durham cows, and finds that the new strain gives to that breed a special hardihood and fitness for the climate and district. He proposes to make further experiments with the polled Angus and Jersey breeds. The aspect of the country around is in delightful contrast to that through which we have previously travelled. Level and fertile land, covered with rich natural grasses, and clear of trees or scrub, stretches way beyond what the eye can reach in every direction. In this is to be seen everywhere the homesteads and huge barns of the settlers. Some of these we had the opportunity of visiting, but must reserve a description of them for another paper.

LOCAL &amp; GENERAL NEWS.

THE usual temperance meeting, this evening, in Fowler's yard.

A COPY of the BULLETIN of Saturday, August 21st, is wanted. Anyone who can send said copy, will receive double price, or more, for it at this office.

Mr. Dave, ex-Attorney-General, has resumed the practice of his profession as solicitor and barister, and can be found in his office, Spreckels' block, upstairs.

A SUPERBLY grand painting of Wailuku falls, by Tavenier, is on view at Williams' photographic parlors. The painting belongs to Mr. Chas. Arnold.

A DEVOTED mother has had a splendid cake made at the Elise saloon, to be sent to her boy at San Mateo College, for a holiday feast, and as a token of remembrance.

At last night's meeting of the Hawaiian Rowing and Yachting Association, the following officers for the coming year were elected:—President, His Majesty the King; Vice-President, Governor Laukea and Mr. C. B. Wilson; Secretary, Mr. W. M. Giffard.

THERE will be a meeting for Japanese in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, tomorrow at 11 o'clock. The Japanese women are especially desired to attend that they may hear an address from Miss Gelfek, who has resided twelve years in Japan, and will speak to them in Japanese.

A PRETTY PRODUCTION.

The Hawaiian coat of arms on the portfolio in which the King's speech was held during its reading, this morning, is the handiwork of Mrs. Nicolls. It is an admirable production of art, worked in single thread of fillosette silk, of about a dozen shades of color. A richer or more tasteful combination of beautiful colors could scarcely be conceived.

RECENT ACQUISITIONS OF THE LIBRARY AND READING ROOM ASSOCIATION.

Among the books recently added to the Library are the following: Gesia Christi; a History of Humane progress under Christianity by Chas. L. Brace; Studies in English Literature by Wm. Swinson; Pure English by Hecker and Girwin; Country Living and Country Thinking by Gail Hamilton; Cass; the; politics, &c., by W. G. Sissler; Modern Seaman Practice and Engineering by Winer and Miller (4 vols); Testimony of the Ages by H. W. Lunt; Pathways of the Holy Land by J. D. McCabe; also a variety of fiction.

EXHIBITION OF BILLIARDS.

Mr. J. F. B. McCleery, champion billiard player, exhibited his skill at billiards to a company of spectators, last evening, at the Hawaiian hotel. The large dining hall was cleared of its usual furniture and chairs, for the occasion, and a billiard table placed in the centre. Sufficient space was left around the table for the movements of the billiardist, and the rest of the hall taken up by chairs for the spectators. The arrangements were very convenient, both for player and lookers-on. The seats were very well occupied by a deeply interested company, in which there were several ladies. Quiet, order, and decorum prevailed throughout. The playing was watched with intense interest from beginning to end, and at times with a church-like stillness. Applause was frequent and spontaneous but in each instance quickly subsided in close attention to succeeding operations.

The table used on the occasion is the Brunswick-Balke-Collender with Mouch cushions, and is an elaborate piece of workmanship. It is made of ebony, white holly, mahogany, and other costly woods, handsomely inlaid and artistically shaped. This table took the gold and silver medals at the Mechanics' Exposition of San Francisco in 1885. Since its arrival here it has been sold to His Majesty the King, through Mr. H. F. Hiller, and will shortly be transferred to the Palace.

A few minutes after 8 o'clock Mr. McCleery announced that he would play a game with Mr. Maurice Keohakole, of 100 points up, 3 ball carom game, Maurice to score as he goes along, whilst McCleery required to make a run of 100 points or no score. Maurice had the lead. His play was of a simple character, and not characterized by anything showy or dashing. McCleery followed and it was at once evident that he was a master of the cue. He played with ease and grace throughout, until his final effort of making 100 points in one run, was accomplished in a masterly and scientific manner. The native made one run of 20 points for which he was deservedly applauded. The expert followed with 30, and immediately afterward with 40. Maurice gradually approached the end, and when it was announced 99 vs nothing with an apparently easy shot left, there appeared to be nothing left but for Maurice to win. By one of those unaccountable freaks of the balls he failed to score which once more let in McCleery. It was his only chance. He sailed with a determined look about him and apparent determination to win. He got the balls to the rails and very cleverly kept them there, and scored away as fast as the score could record. The applause was frequent and the excitement intense, more especially when he would emerge from an apparently inextricable labyrinth in the easiest manner imaginable. The game was called 90 vs 99 and the balls on the rails. It was soon 99 all, when the winning stroke was made by McCleery at the break end of the table. To accomplish the 100 points he had travelled down the left-hand cushion, across the top cushion, and up the right-hand cushion, when a suppressed feeling of admiration was vented by the enthusiastic audience. Mr. Maurice was congratulated on his favorable display of billiards. Mr. McCleery shook him by the hand and thanked him heartily for assisting him in his exhibition. Maurice made some pretty shots, but he lacks knowledge, like his countrymen who played on the previous evening. McCleery played was, in the eye of an amateur, faultless. The interval of five or ten minutes was availed of by a general run down stairs when a chef of another type attended to the public wants.

On returning to the Salon de Billiards, Mr. McCleery announced that he would give a few exhibition shots. He explained first the meaning of the 8 inch or 14 inch balk line carom game, giving practical illustrations of how the game is played. He next gave a series of brilliant shots, which it would appear to the uninitiated were next to impossible. But they came off successfully, and Mr. McCleery closed his interesting entertainment to an appreciative audience. To describe the various shots, and to tell the public how they are accomplished is more than our reporter dare attempt. He, in common with all who were there last evening, desires to see another game. The run of 100 points is very pretty, but with an opponent like Saylor, it is questionable whether a similar game would be played. Surely the public of Honolulu and the enterprising lessees of the Hotel, could make it sufficiently interesting to bring about a match, before these gentlemen return to the Coast.

INFLUENCE OF POSSESSING A HOME.

The point is made by the Age of Steel that the men who own homes are never in favor of anarchy. This is a significant fact, and statesmen and rulers the world over should do everything in their power to make it easy for poor men to acquire homes of their own. In Switzerland, where 465,000 out of the 455,000 heads of families are householders, the people are conservative and opposed to radical extremes. In this country Philadelphia is a case in point. In no city in the world do so many working people own homes. The consequence is that the city never dreads such upheavals as they have in Chicago, or because the workingmen, having property at stake, are always on the side of law and order.—Atlanta Constitution.

DECORATIONS.

Mr. Geo. B. Peacock, manager of Goo Kim's store, corner of Fort and Hotel streets, has artistically decorated the store windows. One window contains a fine display of Chinese handpainted and carved ivory fans; fancy and embroidered silk handkerchiefs of fine texture, pongsies and other Chinese goods so arranged that the blending of the various colors has a pleasing effect. The corner window exhibits an endless variety of ladies dress goods, pretty hats and gorgeous ribbons, so prettily placed that the skill of the artist is obvious. The third window brings to view an assortment of gent's furnishing goods. The store as a whole, through the ingenuity of Mr. Peacock, possesses a scrupulously nice and very attractive appearance.
